

THE LONDON DUCK TOURS

April 14, 2010

It's not until friends or family visit that you think to go to some of the more obvious places the Capital has to offer. I love those weekends when I become a tourist in my own home ? I?m constantly surprised by how much fun some of our ?tourist? attractions are. Over the years we?ve built up a list of some of our favourite things to do with visitors, but since we now have kids (and so do many of our guests) we have a sure-fired winner: the London Duck Tours. A vehicle that not only travels on land but also on water ? the splashdown (when you enter the water) is worth the ticket price alone!

The tour takes in some key London highlights (Big Ben, Houses of Parliament, Trafalgar Square and The London Eye) but it?s the tour guides who make it (ours got the whole ?duck? quacking when it saw another duck ? the kids were in hysterics and couldn?t stop talking about it for days)! It is cheesy but brilliant - but you have to be the sort to throw yourself into these things - not for those who embarrass easily.

Duck departure point:
