

KATZ'S DELICATESSEN

June 28, 2010

Katz's Delicatessen is a classic New York fixture and happens to be one of the few dining institutions to have survived the massive gentrification of the East Village. The sprawling cafeteria-like space is filled with nostalgia and serves up hand-cut fries, mile high pastrami sandwiches and hot dogs with all the fixins'. It is an easy place to bring a child as the service is quick and there is ample seating. Katz's still uses the same 'ticket' system that they used when they opened back in the day... there are several meal stations to go to pick up your food and you pay on your way out. (Image from Flickr.)

Nearby Playgrounds: 1st Street Park (1st Avenue and 1st Street) and Tompkins Square Park (8th Street and Avenue A)<

Category: East Village, Eat, Where

DINA | NO COMMENTS
