

MCNALLY JACKSON BOOKSTORE

July 23, 2010

I am all about supporting the underdog in this city and the McNally-Jackson Bookstore in Nolita is my very favorite bookstore. Not only is it great for my own browsing but I happen to think they have an incredible children's book section. You won't find any junky Dora or Elmo themed reads here and they carry a large selection of titles from abroad. In fact, this is the place we found one of our all time faves from the U.K. (The Runaway Dinner). I always feel smarter just being in the place and the staff is ultra cool to boot (they always have great book suggestions if you are in need of something new to read.) There is also a small café to sit and read a magazine and it's a nice pit-stop to bring a child to pick out new books.

CONTACT DETAILS:

McNally Jackson Bookstore

52 Prince Street (Between Lafayette and Mulberry)
New York City, NY 10012

Category: Nolita, Shop

DINA | NO COMMENTS
